

Prouty Participant Spotlight

Meet Emory Sanders! A long-time New Hampshire resident, Emory has been participating in the Prouty with his family since 2013. Emory has single-handedly raised over $200,000 for the Prouty, an incredible effort! We are thrilled to share his inspirational story with our community.

Emory's journey with the Prouty started when his wife, Suzie, was diagnosed with colon cancer in 2013. Emory noticed a poster about the Prouty and was inspired to get involved, along with his children and grandchildren, and decided to cycle to raise funds. Just a few years later, Emory received his own cancer diagnosis: squamous cell cancer. Dartmouth Cancer Center provided him with a personalized treatment plan, including enrollment in a new clinical trial that they were offering. As Emory continues on his cancer journey, participating in the Prouty helps keep him busy fundraising and feeling like he is making a positive impact for others in the community.

Emory Proutys to honor his wife and support the ground-breaking research and advancement of clinical trials at Dartmouth Cancer Center. He hopes that the support and funds raised through the Prouty will help other patients receive the level of care and support that he has been afforded, in a world-class facility like DCC, so close to home.
