

Helping Cancer Survivors Back to Work

“By finding ways to help people maintain employment, we hope to improve the experience of cancer treatment and maximize patients’ productivity and quality of life.”

Kathleen Lyons, ScD, and Jonathan Lichtenstein, PsyD, MBA.

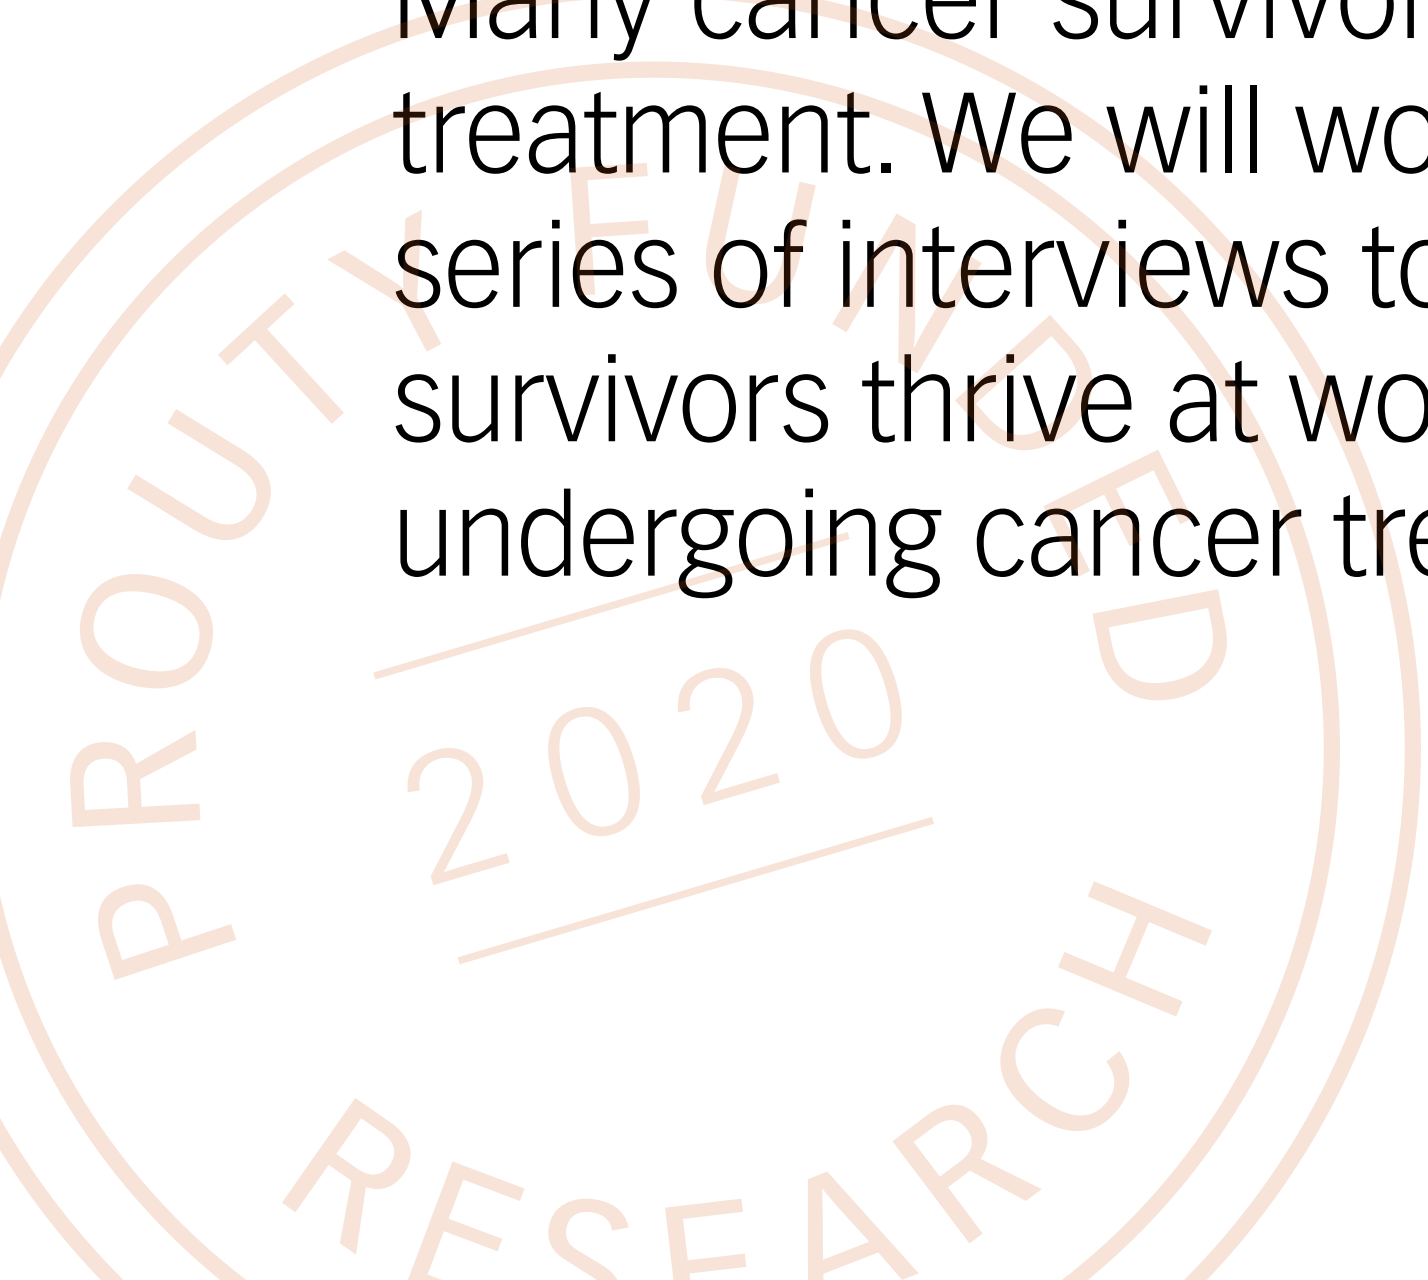

KATHLEEN LYONS, ScD

STUDY NAME Optimizing employment outcomes among rural cancer survivors: Initiation of a community-engaged research program

PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATORS Kathleen Lyons, ScD // Jonathan Lichtenstein, PsyD, MBA

FOCUS To develop interventions that can resolve employment challenges among cancer survivors.

Many cancer survivors struggle to maintain employment during and after cancer treatment. We will work directly with cancer survivors and employers through a series of interviews to develop interventions and programs that can help cancer survivors thrive at work, and help employers support their workers undergoing cancer treatment.

Dartmouth-Hitchcock
NORRIS COTTON
CANCER CENTER

